Supporting
Waterloo Schools Charity

Waterloo Schools Charity, Sierra Leone, is a small charity run by Trustees in Worcestershire and Sierra Leone. It was founded some 15 years ago to assist the schools of Waterloo rebuild their classrooms and buildings after the ravages of 12 years of civil war and to restore and promote education within the schools. Over the ensuing years the Charity shipped several containers of redundant school furniture and equipment from the UK, completed a new school building programme, and is committed to refurbishing and maintaining the classrooms when required. The Charity has watched Waterloo Schools grow to include nursery, primary and junior secondary and senior secondary facilities. Waterloo Schools Charity strongly believes education is the key for a better and brighter future for the children of Sierra Leone. As well as funding the professional development of teachers, the Charity has also over the last 7 years funded the Dr. Read Bursary Scheme, enabling young men and women, former students at Waterloo Schools, to further their education through university and beyond.
